“ DT was a good Maintenance man and an awesome Hustler, LoL. I was a Coordinator with the City. Yes he was hard headed LoL but when God made him he broke the mold. My wife's favorite perfume was Amazing Grace, expensive, about 60 dollars bottle, at least that's expensive to me. I asked him if he could get it for her. He found it and I don't know who his source was, he sold it to us 1/2 the price of what it retailed for. I bought shoes off of him and he found me just about anything I wanted cheaper than anywhere else. He could find anything. I'm pretty sure if I asked him to get me a Nuclear Bomb, he'd have it for me in a week. LoL. He wasn't perfect, but none of us are
The only perfect person that walked this world was nailed t a cross and I know DT knew him
I look forward to seeing him on the other side of the veil. To his Wife, and family, Amber an I send our condolences. We pray for all y'all. God bless you and keep you safe, always.

“ Even though we only met the one time, that I can recall, our hilarious phone conversations about our children's successes, the ups and downs of parenthood and how we were positively impacting our community will be missed. Thank you for being kind, genuine and hilarious. Also, I am sure our community thanks you for your kindness, one sewer cleanup at time. You were kind, patient and loved to stir the pot. You will be missed by an entire community. Your impact will forever be impactful. Jamie Canty, later.

“ DT - just knowing that I will not have you to laugh with at work is enough to not think about. Your friendship these past years make me smile because we knew you had something that would make us laugh. Rest now, son as you called me "Mama," and knowing you are covered because you are with our God. REST EASY, "DT". We will see each other again. - Deborah Holiday Belcher

“ "DT", you will remain with us. I am struggling with the reality of this. I will so miss seeing my neighbor and friend, and hearing that 'hello! Ms. Debra'. I know how proud you were of your whole family. I loved your updates on the kids' game progress. Thinking of all of you now.
