

Mary Wilder

June 25, 1937 - January 18, 2025

Mary J. Wilder of Winston-Salem, North Carolina received her wings on January 18, 2025, at 10:10 pm passing away peacefully at Novant Health Forsyth Medical Center. She was surrounded by her family and friends and bid them farewell in her own loving way. Mary was born in Savannah, Georgia to Eva Queen Esther Huginnie (Mother), William Robinson (Father), and Walter A. Grubb (Step Father). Mary attended Commerce High School prior to the start of her culinary career. She was a loving and caring person to her children, family, friends and acquaintances. During her lifetime she experienced many successes as well as challenges. She was a woman of strength, mentoring her children as well as others along her journey.

Mary was an awesome cook providing nutritious food, well known for those mouth-watering meals, specializing in her bread pudding, pound cake and chitterlings. She was preceded in death by her husband John Wilder. She is survived by her children: Pamela Yvette Jackson, Kevin Wilder and his fiancée Yolanda Turner, Kalua Princess Wilder, and Natile Davis Richardson who she adored. Mary is survived by her two siblings, Mabel P. Robinson and Walter A. Grubb, Jr., who she loved dearly. As well as her adopted sister Geraldine Hooper. Her legacy extends to her grandchildren Robert (Duval) Wilder and his wife Trinisha Wilder, Brianna Wilder, Khallid Marshall and his wife Rajhanae Marshall, Kalandra Matangira and her husband Daniel-Kenyatta Matangira, and great-grandchildren Keandre Wilder, Amir Marshall and Kamora Williams. She is also survived by a host of nieces, nephews, and cousins, in laws, family, and friends along with her lifelong friends Nathan and Iona King.
